“Pieces of the project I started to collect already long time ago, by obtaining traces of separated motifs that after some time appeared as a frame of the same idea that was repeating all over again. I realized that they gave it a clear direction, which founds in observing socio-problematic aspect of our society. After gathering, remembering and finally writing down all of the particles which were screaming the same messages out I understood that they matured to the point where the project can start to make his roots from...”
